

The Ruins of PAGAN

Monks whitewash some of Pagan's temples to earn merit for future lives: the temples were built as offerings to religion.

Noble brick vault gave entrance to inner sanctuary through massive wall.

Monuments of Pagan extend for miles over the dusty silence of the Irrawaddy plain.

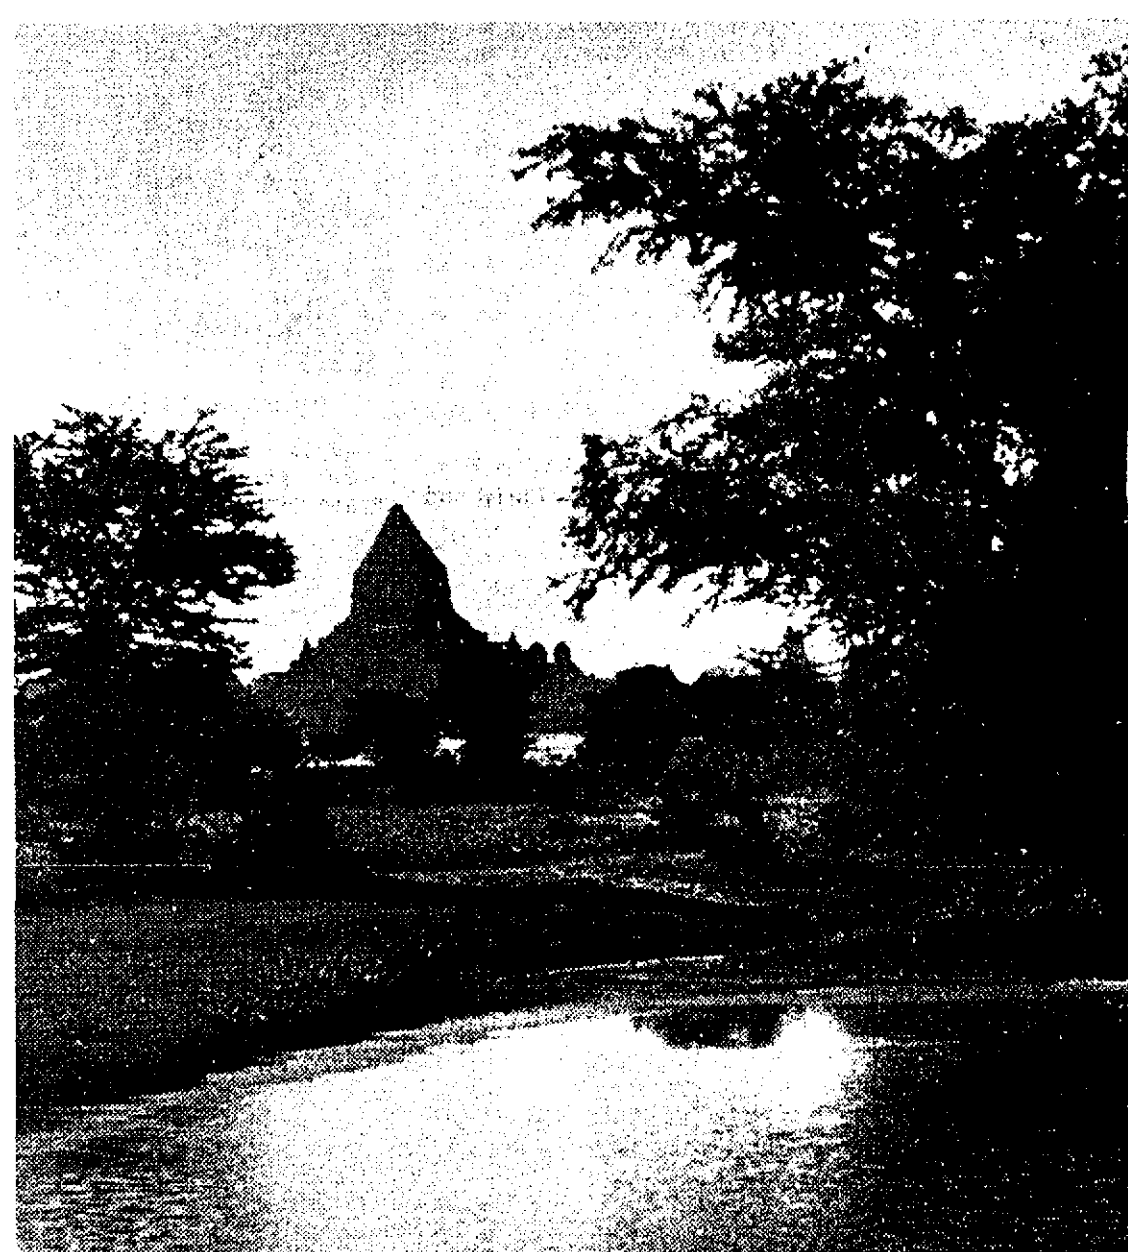

Secluded in the interior of Burma, a hermit among southeast Asian nations, lies an antique landscape of haunting beauty and majesty. The ruins of Pagan are one of the greatest and best preserved historical monuments in Asia, relics of the capital of an ancient kingdom which flourished for two and a half centuries between roughly 1044 and 1287.

The monuments stand witness to the ardent Buddhist convictions of Pagan's rulers. They were religious offerings, built as handsomely as the donor, usually a king or prince, could afford. Except for a few monasteries and libraries, the buildings had no practical value: they were not churches in our sense, though they did serve to remind the people of Buddha and his teachings. At one time, Pagan had about 13,000 religious buildings in brick or stone. Over 1,000 remain basically intact, and some 6,000 more survive in a ruined state, scattered over about 240 square miles.

The ruins of the old city of Pagan lie in a broad arc twelve miles long on the left bank of the Irrawaddy river. The people of Pagan today, hardworking peasants, live in a handful of quiet villages separated by arid land and dominated by towering monuments of all shapes and sizes. Their lives seem to have changed little since Pagan was overrun in 1287 by Mongol invaders led by Kubla Khan, and Burma's golden age came to an end.

19th century pagoda (front) and 12th century relic (rear).

Typical silhouette of Pagan's monuments is a bell-shaped tower; at one time there were some 13,000, of which over 1,000 remain intact.

Pagan peasant collecting wood is probably clothed much as his ancestors were a thousand years ago.

Orioles In Double Win Over Wash.

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Washington—first in war, first in peace, first in the hearts of the Baltimore Orioles ... and last in the American League East.

The Washington Senators, that is, who continued their good neighbor policy by dropping a doubleheader to the Orioles Friday night 12-10 and 3-2 in 13 innings.

The Orioles' lead in the AL East had shrunk from 7½ games to 1½ over the past few weeks as they dropped 10 of 16 games. But the Senators, as usual, were just what the doctor ordered. Baltimore has taken Washington four out of five this season after going 13-5 last year and 14-4 in 1968 and the series since the expansion Senators were born in 1961 stands 114-53 in favor of you know who.

Coupled with the New York Yankees' 7-4 loss at Boston—Sonny Siebert pitched a no-hitter for eight innings—the Orioles doubled their lead to three games over the Yanks. Elsewhere, Kansas City took Minnesota 5-1, Cleveland downed Detroit 4-2, the Chicago White Sox beat Oakland 4-2 and Milwaukee defeated California 5-2.

In the National League, St. Louis shaded the Chicago Cubs 5-3 in 11 innings, the New York Mets blasted Philadelphia 13-3, Los Angeles whipped Cincinnati 6-1, Atlanta swept Houston 7-6 and 4-2, Pittsburgh trounced Montreal 8-4 and San Diego clipped San Francisco 6-3.

"It's a little more fun this way," yelled Baltimore manager Earl Weaver as he wandered through the clubhouse after the Orioles' sweep.

"We are," he confided, "a little bit behind schedule ... but you never know when the Birds'll get hot."

"Are you out of your slump?" someone wanted to know.

"I hate to say it," Weaver replied, "but we play 'em one at a time."

The double success gave the Orioles an 8-3 record in June as they tried to get back on pitching coach George Bamberger's schedule, which calls for them to play nine games over .500 each month en route to another flag. They were right on target through April and May with a 33-15 record.

They won the opener despite eight runs batted in by Mike Epstein of the Senators and took the nightcap on Merv Rettenmund's two-out run-scoring single in the 13th.

Frank Robinson hit a two-run homer in the first inning of the nightcap but the Senators caught up on solo homers by Paul Casanova in the fifth and Bernie Allen with two out in the ninth. Dave Johnson doubled to lead off the 13th after Darold Knowles had pitched five hitless relief innings and eventually scored the winning run.

After trailing 12-4 in the first game—Boog Powell drove in four runs with two doubles and two singles—the Senators rallied on a grand slam by Epstein in the seventh—his second homer of the game—and had the tying run at the plate in the ninth following a two-run single by Epstein before the rally ended.

Boston's Siebert, who pitched a no-hitter for Cleveland against Washington in 1966, held the Yankees to three walks for eight innings. But Horace Clarke, who broke up a no-hit bid by Kansas City's Jim Rooker in the same situation earlier this month, cracked a leadoff single, Jerry Kenney doubled, Bobby Murcer singled and Roy White homered, bringing on Sparky Lyle, who got the final three outs on only four pitches.

"I was aware of the no-hitter all the way," said Siebert, "but it never reached the point where it became crucial. There was no great pressure. There probably was more pressure on the fans. I just gave it my best shot and didn't do it. That's it."

Mike Andrews, Reggie Smith and Carl Yastrzemski belted homers off loser Stan Bahnsen.

Kansas City's Dick Drago stifled powerful Minnesota on seven singles with batting support from Amos Otis, who collected a double and two singles. Cookie Rojas singled a run home against loser Bert Blyleven in the third. Singles by Bob Oliver and Joe Keough, Lou Piniella's double and a forceout produced two runs in the fourth and the Royals got two more in the fifth on Otis' single, Oliver's double, a single by Keough and Piniella's infield out.

The reeling Angels missed a chance to gain on the Twins in the AL West and remained five games behind by losing to the Brewers. It was their fifth consecutive setback and seventh in eight games. Phil Roof's two-run homer was the big blow for the Brewers. Jim Fregosi homered for the Angels.

Gail Hopkins drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Joe Horlen survived a shaky first inning as the White Sox turned back Oakland. The A's got only one run in the first, although they managed two hits, two walks and three stolen bases, but got only four hits off Horlen thereafter, including Don Mincher's 14th homer.

The Indians swept to their sixth straight triumph, beating Detroit behind Sam McDowell's four-hit pitching. Two of the blows were homers by Mickey Stanley and Jim Northrup.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Bill Hobbs of Concord, Mass., and Tom Tiffany of Redwood Falls, Minn., were named Thursday the first co-captains of Harvard's heavyweight crew since the university started intercollegiate competition in the sport in 1852.

Hobbs, an outstanding oarsman, competed in the Olympic Games at Mexico City. Tiffany is a coxswain.

DENVER (AP) — Commissioner Jack Dolph of the American Basketball Association said Thursday the Kentucky Colonels must send three players to Dallas in exchange for signing Bob Croft, who had been drafted by the Chaparrals.

Dolph said Bud Olsen and Jim Ligon would go to Dallas and, in addition, the Colonels must surrender their second-round draft choice to Dallas next spring.

Croft played for the University of Tennessee.

Braves Get Twin Win Over Astros

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer
Clete Boyer, Atlanta's clever fielding third baseman, whose bat has been idle most of June and Braves' teammate Ron Reed, idle since spring training, turned their talents on Houston and sent the Astros reeling.

Boyer, who snapped a horrendous 2-52 batting slump, delivered the winning run in the opener with a single and rapped a pair of key hits in the nightcap as the Braves swept to a 7-6, 4-2 sweep over the Astros Friday night in a doubleheader.

Reed, the Braves' 18-game winner last season, who broke his collarbone March 16, picked up the opening game victory in his first appearance, stopping Houston on one run and three hits over the final five innings.

In other National League contests, Los Angeles tripped Cincinnati 6-1, New York belted Philadelphia 13-3, St. Louis downed Chicago 5-3 in 17 innings, San Diego topped San Francisco 6-3 and Pittsburgh whipped Montreal 8-4.

In the American League, Baltimore swept a doubleheader from Washington, 12-10 and 3-2 in 13 innings, Boston stopped New York 7-4, Cleveland edged Detroit 4-2, Kansas City trimmed Minnesota 5-1, Chicago nipped Oakland 4-2 and Milwaukee beat California 5-2.

Boyer, who was rested for a couple of days recently said "It felt real good. I think the slump was from being tired."

The 34-year-old, 15-year veteran, upped his average to .196 with the three hits and his three runs batted in, gave him 29.

"This ought to show them I can hit if I get some rest," Boyer said after the game. "I'm not going to hit .300 but I'm going to get some big hits. I'm not an out. I just want to knock in the important runs when I have to."

And that he did against the Astros, who lost their fifth straight and 10th in 12 starts. Boyer's seventh inning run-scoring double in the opener, snapped a 6-6 deadlock and gave Reed the victory. In the second game, Boyer singled and scored Atlanta's first run and drove in another with a fourth inning single.

Rico Carty had a two-run homer, his 16th, in the opener while Hank Aaron drilled his 19th in the nightcap, a two-run shot as Pat Jarvis, 7-5, scattered eight hits, two of them solo homers by Doug Rader.

Reed, the 6-foot-6, 215-pound right-hander, had arrived earlier in the day from Amarillo, Tex., where he had been working out with the Braves' farm club and had no idea he'd pitch. "You should have seen him pitch a week ago," said Paul Richards, the Atlanta general manager. "You wouldn't have believed it. He was wild and unsteady. Just terrible. It was like the first day of spring training for him."

Andy Kosco drilled a solo homer and RBI single in the Dodgers' victory with Bill Singer, 2-2, making his second start since missing two months of the season with hepatitis, allowing the Reds only two hits in five innings.

Jose Pena relieved Slinger and allowed a two-out eighth inning homer to the Reds' John Bench. It was the Cincinnati catcher's 22nd.

The Mets exploded for seven first inning runs and Tom Seaver rode a 15-hit attack to his 10th victory, striking out 11.

Ken Boswell had three hits for the Mets, including a two-run homer and Wayne Garrett rapped a triple and homer.

Ted Simmons cracked a two-out, bases-loaded single in the 17th, ending the 4:56 marathon at Chicago. A sacrifice fly by Ron Santo, following Jim Hickman's triple had tied it at 3-3 for the Cubs in the ninth.

Rookie Dave Cash socked a pair of triples, driving in four runs, including a bases-loaded three base hit, snapping a 4-4 tie in the sixth.

Al Ferrara singled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh as the Padres beat Giants' right-hander Juan Marichal for the third straight time. Marichal is 3-6 on the season.

RALBOVSKY Jackson Experiencing What Allen Survived

By MARTY RALBOVSKY

NEW YORK—(NEA)—In view of the recent incident involving Reggie Jackson and the management of the Oakland A's—he was threatened with demotion to the minor leagues if he didn't start hitting, and he said he would never go down—one may wonder who the star black player turns to in moments of personal distress?

Although no one short of Jim Bouton can be expected to expand on the subject publicly, it has not escaped the notice of many black players that while Reggie Jackson was hitting .194, Curt Blefary was hitting .187, Gene Alley .192 and Rico Petrocelli .219—and none of them were threatened with a return trip to the minors.

What many black players have long regarded as a gap in understanding, so to speak, between baseball's exclusively white management and themselves is threatening to surface, what with Richie Allen and Curt Flood and now Jackson taking personal stands against hierarchy in less than a year's time. It all boils down, many of them feel, to management's lack of insight into the black psyche and often results in overreaction to the problem—as they feel the Jackson threat is.

Richie Allen, himself, has run the management gauntlet and now, content at last as a St. Louis Cardinal, qualifies as baseball's resident philosopher on the subject.

Ironically, he came to St. Louis in the trade that sent Flood to the Phillies—and resulted in an antitrust suit against the reserve clause. Allen is also a personal friend of Reggie Jackson's. Last season, when Jackson was hitting 47 home runs and was being badgered by the public, it was Allen who sent him a note that said, in effect, "don't let the pressure get you down."

"I know what Reggie's going through right now," said Allen, before a game against the Mets. "He's going through the same thing I did. Management can be brutal because it really doesn't understand what makes a black player tick. Everything's fine when the black player is going good, hitting home runs and winning games and all that, but let something happen, let a problem come up, and the black player is going to be up against it."

"They should leave a kid like Reggie Jackson alone. If they do, he'll straighten himself out—guaranteed. I went through the same thing. If they had left me alone, there wouldn't have been any big problems. But no, somebody says something and it get blown up out of proportion, and who's left to bear the brunt of it? The player, that's who. And instead of getting better, the whole thing gets worse."

"They don't have to give him all this crap about the minors. They don't have to resort to this business of trying to scare him out of a slump. He's not scared a bit—a little more mixed-up, maybe, but not scared. He knows he can still hit hell out of the ball, and so do they. So why don't they just ride the slump out with him?"

"You know, I've been getting a look at the other side of all this with my horses. I own a string of racing horses. I deal in horse flesh, you might say, as they deal in human flesh. Now, I know that if one of my horses is hurting and not running well, hell, I'm not going to torment it. I'm going to leave it alone and let it get back on its own. You can't torment a human being and expect him to get better. Why the hell torment a human being and expect him to get better?"

Allen likens the demotion threat to Jackson to the time the Philadelphia Phillies wanted him to sign a conditional contract.

"Look, I gashed my hand and I could hardly hold a bat for awhile. So they said, here, sign this conditional contract. Conditional contract, imagine that? They wanted me to sign a contract and then they wanted to see for themselves whether or not I could play again. If not, then piffit. Ol' Richie doesn't collect a dime. No way I was going to sign something like that. No-o-o-o way."

"A lot of people who run baseball still don't think of us, really, as human beings. I'm black, see, and I'm proud I'm black and I wouldn't want to be any other color. I'm a human being, too, and so are all the rest of the black players in this game. But, when things are going bad for us, you'd never know it."

"As for Reggie, I think I'm going to put in a call to him one of these days and tell him, 'Reggie, keep your chin up and don't let it get you down.' There's nothing else he can do about it. There's nothing else I can do."

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Time for a pit stop.

It isn't the Indy 500, but just as much excitement is generated among British five-year-olds participating in London's Junior Grand Prix. This year's 75-yard dash was won by Michael Stoner of Oxfordshire in the breathtaking speed of four miles an hour. Michael's prizes were a gleaming trophy and the pedal car that took him to the title.

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

Square-to-Square

One of the monthly golf magazines has been running a series of articles on the "square-to-square" method of swinging. A number of club professionals are teaching this, and some of the touring players, notably Bert Yancey and a few other younger fellows, are using it.

People ask me for my opinion, and I tell them I always have been very skeptical of all-encompassing theories about golf. Some so-called maxims simply have to be waived, depending on your physical ability and other factors. The greatest teachers, I think, do not approach a pupil with a thoroughgoing system in mind and then try to mold him to it. They try to work with what the pupil already has developed, assuming that he isn't a beginner. People tend to fall into habits that are comfortable to them, and often that is the best approach to this game.

If something goes wrong with my swing, I go back to the basics that my father taught me. I don't go to a new, systematic way of swinging. It is good to get a golfer conscious of having the clubface square (or perpendicular) to the intended line of flight at address and at impact, but I have seen many fine players do some radically different things in between those two stages. I'm not sure the average golfer can keep the clubface square all during the swing. That takes a strong man. Try this square-to-square method, but don't be discouraged if you cannot assimilate very much of it.

Gene Autry is chairman of the board of the California Angels.

Old U. S. Checks Are Chewed Up

MECHANICSBURG, Pa. (AP) — That paper napkin on the dinner table may once have been a U.S. Treasury check worth millions of dollars.

Each month for the past five years a machine operated by the federal records center here shreds and bales some 60 million canceled Treasury checks.

The shredded checks are sold to pulp mills and are made into napkins or facial and toilet tissue.

Checks from all over the world are picked up several times a week by the General Services Administration—(GSA)—from Treasury offices in Washington and hauled to Mechanicsburg. They are indexed and stored for seven years.

Retired Treasury checks bring top prices on the used paper market because of their high quality for reprocessing, Port said.

During the seven years the checks are in storage, the center receives frequent requests—some 400,000 a year from the Treasury—to review some of them for various reasons. That is why the checks are indexed.

Townsmen Recover Tons of Glass

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Toting old bottles and jars in boxes, clothing hampers, baskets and children's wagons, Ann Arbor residents have turned in 65 tons of waste glass destined to be melted down for reuse rather than becoming litter.

The two-day collection experiment was sponsored by Owens-Illinois, Inc., a glass-making company, and a citizens' anti-pollution group, Environmental Action for Survival (ENACT).

Owens-Illinois paid a penny per pound for the discarded glass, which was separated into containers—one for green, one for amber, one for clear.

April Disaster Month in Woods

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Forester Virgil W. Cothren said Wednesday April was the "most disastrous" month for Arkansas in the number of deaths and acres of timber lost because of fire on private property.

Cothren said records showed that during April 1,070 fires on private forest land killed three persons, including the first state ranger to die fighting a fire, and burned 49,768 acres of timber valued at $1,492,890.

Learned of SCA Funds Case Early

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Two men who were promoted Wednesday in the business office of State College of Arkansas said Thursday they found a $13,000 shortage in school funds last September, but did not make a disclosure of it until they had investigated further.

"We didn't know if we had a case of embezzlement at the time," said Bennie Horton, who was promoted Wednesday by the Board of Trustees from controller to vice president for business affairs.

Horton said in an interview with the Conway Log Cabin Democrat that the possibility existed at that time that the shortage could be explained by miscoding in the punch-card system implemented at the college for student fees several years ago.

Leslie P. Crafton, an accountant who was promoted by the board to assistant business manager, specialized in the system.

State auditors earlier this year reported a shortage in funds of more than $28,000. Robert L. Pruitt, 30, of Phoenix, Ariz., former SCA cashier, has been charged with embezzlement.

Legislative auditors have said Horton and Crafton shared responsibility for bookkeeping procedures that auditors have criticized as being lax. No allegation was made that either Horton or Crafton was involved in the alleged shortage.

"I inherited a system," said Horton, who came to SCA last year. "At least the major part of the shortage had taken place before I joined the department."

Horton and Crafton said the alleged missing funds were so well hidden that an auditor would not have discovered a shortage without knowing one existed. The auditors disagreed.

Horton and Crafton said they began trying to track down the alleged shortage immediately after it was discovered. They said Pruitt, who left the school in February, assisted in the search.

Horton said the situation was reported to Harold Eidson, whom Horton has succeeded as vice president for business affairs, and that Eidson informed President Silas D. Snow.

Snow said he "immediately" told state legislative auditor Orvel M. Johnson.

Horton said he wanted "to protect the integrity of the college" by giving the matter a full investigation before bringing to the attention of public auditors.

The auditing team examining SCA's books reported that some federal funds may have been misused.

"I don't think there is any truth to the statement," Horton said.

Red Troops Attack Near Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Communist troops launched a series of new attacks against towns north and northeast of Phnom Penh today as Cambodian forces struggled to keep the capital from being isolated.

Along with fighting at several points along major highways, increased pressure at Tonle Bet and other locations along the Mekong River was seen here as indicating a renewed effort by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong to seize control of the upper reaches of the vital waterway.

Heavy fighting was reported from Tonle Bet, a city virtually leveled in a battle several weeks ago. Tonle Bet, 50 miles northeast of here, is on the Mekong opposite the important provincial capital of Kompong Cham.

Enemy units also overran a government post at Peam Chikang on the Mekong 13 miles west of Kompong Cham, and threatened Skoun, on the main road linking Kompong Cham with Phnom Penh.

Fighting involving Cambodian and South Vietnamese forces flared at several other points well inside Cambodia, and U.S. forces lost eight men killed and 29 wounded in a sudden surprise of fighting along the border areas, where they are digging out enemy supply caches.

More heavy fighting was reported at Kompong Thom, a provincial capital 80 miles north of Phnom Penh.

Military analysts in Phnom Penh say that while the capital remains a primary target of enemy forces trying to cut all main highways leading to it, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong also want to take control of the Mekong River's upper reaches and tributaries from southern Laos into Cambodia, for moving troops and supplies.

The U.S. Command said three Americans were killed and 23 wounded Friday when North Vietnamese troops launched a heavy mortar barrage and a ground attack against a night bivouac of the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment in the Fishhook area near Mimot.

Multiple Murder Tale Is Related

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Police said an escaped California convict blurted out a bizarre story Thursday of multiple slayings.

Investigators held the man, Joe Reed Mason, 41, in Corpus Christi on charges of robbery and rape.

Border authorities arrested Mason at the international bridge Wednesday night as he attempted to cross from Mexico into Laredo, Tex.

Police said Mason told them he shot James H. Carver to death near Waldron, Ark., May 10. They said Carver's identification papers were in his possession when arrested.

Mason, officers said, also told them he picked up a hitchhiker and killed him near the Texas-Arkansas state line and threw the body on a gravel road.

Investigators said they were unable to confirm at once Mason's story of the hitchhiker slaying.

According to police, Mason said that on May 12 he strangled Anthony Altmeyer in Houston and sold his car and gun in Mexico.

Police said that on June 11 Mason allegedly approached a woman motorist, forced her to drive to his hotel room, raped her and left her tied to a bed. The assailant took two rings, a watch and her car, police said.

Authorities said Mason escaped from a prison near Hobart Mills, Calif., last July while serving a life sentence for murder.

Standby Controls Argued

By EDMOND LEBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The issue of wage and price controls shows signs of igniting a congressional furor over President Nixon's domestic policies.

"I think Congress should consider standby controls," House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma said in an interview.

Although he stopped short of an outright endorsement of controls, Albert clearly backs the effort of Democratic members of the Banking Committee to write standby control authority for the President into pending legislation.

Nixon wants no wage-price control legislation, even on a standby basis, as he made abundantly clear in his economic speech Wednesday. Democrats have criticized that speech as lacking in effective new initiatives against continuing inflation and the slump in employment.

The drive for standby wage and price controls is building at a time Nixon seeks to raise the national debt ceiling by $18 billion and government statisticians reported another four-tenths of one per cent living cost increase during May.

Labor leaders and businessmen appeared divided over the wage and price control issue following the President's economic message. Some want more controls, while others want none.

Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy also said Thursday there was "some likelihood" that Nixon would ask Congress for tax increases next year.

Democratic insistence on bringing the wage-price control matter to a House vote could harden party positions on the whole issue of the administration's economic policy—an issue some congressmen are saying will overshadow the Indochina war by the November elections.

Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., and other Democratic members of the Banking Committee want to write standby controls over prices and wages into pending legislation to extend the Defense Production Act, and they say their chances are good.

The senior Republican committee member, Rep. William B. Widnall of New Jersey, challenged this estimate.

Dr. Salk to Marry Picasso's Ex

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Jonas Salk, developer of the Salk polio vaccine, and Francisco Gilot, a former mistress of artist Pablo Picasso, plan to be married July 9 in Paris.

Miss Gilot, 48, bore Picasso two children during her 11 years with the artist.

Salk, 55, was married once before. He was divorced in 1968.

Fudge Frosting

1-3 c. cocoa
1 1/2 c. sugar
dash of salt

Creator of Fathers Day Thrilled

By RICHARD ZAHLER

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Next Sunday is Father's Day, and Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, who conceived it 60 years ago, says "I am just thrilled" with the way the idea caught on.

Mrs. Dodd, now 88, even approves of the commercialization of what she originally saw as a spiritual occasion explaining:

"One of my special ideas was to have gifts for fathers. Fathers are always great gift givers and they appreciate the reciprocity."

Mrs. Dodd, a published poet and writer, a painter and an artist in ceramics, received the inspiration for Father's Day June 5, 1910, her father's birthday.

Her father had moved to the Northwest in the 1880s from a farm near Jenny Lind, Ark. Mrs. Dodd was 16, oldest of five children, when her mother died in 1898.

"Our father came in and told us our mother had gone away," she recalled in an interview. "From that time on, he was a father and mother both."

The day after her father's birthday in 1910 the Spokane Ministerial Alliance accepted Mrs. Dodd's proposal to set aside one day each year for a tribute to fathers.

The day was celebrated locally for six years, then received national attention in 1916 when President Woodrow Wilson officially opened a Father's Day church service in Spokane.

House Delay on Narcotics Blasted

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell criticized the House today for not acting on the Nixon administration's proposed legislation to curb drug abuse and the narcotics traffic. He called it an appalling delay.

"If the House of Representatives takes much longer," Mitchell said, "it will paralyze our whole coordinated assault against narcotics."

The bill, which contains the controversial "no-knock" provision, passed the Senate in January. It is still before a House committee.

In remarks prepared for the Florida Bar Association, Mitchell said:

"Frankly, I find this delay appalling."

"Each day another three or four addicts in New York die of heroin overdose; each day 100,000 or more addicts spend an average of $45 each to support their habits, with many resorting to crime for their funds; and each day a countless number of young boys and girls, will, for the first time, pop brightly colored pills in their mouths, smoke pot or jab a filthy needle into a waiting vein."

Mitchell said the drug-abuse bill is "being delayed to death by a combination of bureaucratic slowness and minor criticisms."

Mitchell said the no-knock provision "simply means that an officer may—if he can convince a judge—obtain a warrant which authorizes entry into dwellings without the customary prior notice of authority and purpose."

New Prime Minister Takes Over

By GRANVILLE WATTS

LONDON (AP) — Conservative Edward Heath moved into No. 10 Downing St. Friday night to begin the job of being Britain's new prime minister. A tired and glum Harold Wilson moved out through the back door.

Heath, beaming over his startling upset of Wilson's labor party, celebrated his victory at a party given by Queen Elizabeth at Windsor Castle.

He was easily one of the main centers of attraction at the party, although it was held to honor the 70th birthdays this year of Queen Mother Elizabeth, the Duke of Gloucester and Lord Mountbatten.

After returning to his new home, on Downing Street, Heath got on with the business of forming a government to replace the once headed by Wilson for the past 5 1/2 years. He is expected to announce his cabinet choices over the weekend.

Sir Alex Douglas-Home, the Tory prime minister unseated by Wilson when Labor came to power in 1964, was on his way to London from Scotland amid reports that he would be named foreign secretary to succeed Michael Stewart.

There was also speculation that party stalwart Iain MacLeod might become chancellor of the exchequer, that Geoffrey Ripon might be named defense secretary, and that Heath's deputy party leader, Reginald Maudling, would get key post such as leader of the House of Commons or lord chancellor.

Almost from the moment the returns started coming in from Thursday's national election, computer forecasts indicated that the Conservatives would win an upset victory. But it was not until early Friday afternoon that the vote count showed the Tories had won their 318th seat and controlled more than half of the House of Commons.

Final figures showed that Heath's party had won a 30-seat majority—330 seats to Labor's 288, the Liberal party's 6, and another 6 won by other parties.

Of the total 28,258,332 votes cast, the conservatives received 13,106,965, or 46.4 per cent. Labor polled 12,141,676, or 43 per cent.

President Nixon made two telephone calls to London: one to congratulate Heath and another to express sympathy to Wilson.

The Conservative victory, which surprised all of Britain's pollsters except one, sparked a miniboom on the London Stock Exchange. The pound sterling leapt 22 points to above parity at $2.4002.

Big 4th Is Planned at Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's capital will celebrate the 194th birth of the Republic with Honor America Day, a series of July 4th events designed to "counter all the bad things that have been said about this country."

"This is America Day. Anything that helps honor America we want," said J. Willard Marriott, chairman of Honor America Day.

"It's for people who love America," he added. "We want to counter the bad things that have been said about this country and show there are some good things to talk about."

Marriott is chairman of the board of the Marriott Corp., which he developed from a few local restaurants into a nationwide chain of restaurants, motels and airline food services. A supporter of President Nixon, Marriott served as chairman of the 1969 inaugural committee.

Among the events planned are Olympic-style runners who will carry American flags in relays from Independence Hall in Philadelphia, the Hall of Freedom at Valley Forge and the Colonial Capital at Williamsburg, Va., to Washington.

Illness Due to Spoiled Meat

POCAHONTAS, Ark. (AP) — Spoiled meat was tentatively identified Thursday by state Health Department inspectors as the source of food poisoning that struck children at the Ravensden Springs Baptist Camp near Pocahontas.

A Jonesboro physician who treated several of the children said the food poisoning was of a "light toxic condition."

About 25 children were hospitalized Wednesday night and about 50 others became ill, but did not require hospitalization.
